

Why We Need to Fix Our Parks

National Park Service sites in Wyoming have almost $771 million in deferred maintenance

The Backlog Challenge

The National Park Service (NPS) is over 100 years old, and the infrastructure and facilities at the more than 400 sites it manages nationwide are aging. Add wear and tear from visitors and inconsistent annual funding, and the Park Service can't keep pace with needed repairs. NPS' maintenance backlog has grown to an estimated $12 billion, and almost half of that is for highest-priority assets.

NPS sites in Wyoming have almost $771 million in deferred maintenance.

$141M

Buildings

$2M

Marina and waterfront systems

$3M

Campgrounds

$464M

Roads, parking lots, bridges, and tunnels

$99M

Water and wastewater systems

$62M

Other

Why We Need to Act Now to Fix Our Parks

Our national parks document American history, provide opportunities for recreation, and sustain local and regional economies.

NPS Sites Also Support Local Communities

NPS estimates that in 2018, its sites in Wyoming:

Generated $928 million in visitor spending in local communities.

Attracted 8 million visits.

Generated $1.1 billion in national economic output.

Supported 12,305 jobs.

Source: 2018 NPS Visitor Spending Effects report, accessed Oct. 8, 2019, <https://www.nps.gov/subjects/socialscience/vse.htm>

If all the deferred maintenance at NPS sites in Wyoming was addressed, an estimated 7,008 jobs could be created or supported.

Source: Cadmus, "Restoring Parks, Creating Jobs: How Infrastructure Restoration in the National Park System Can Create or Support Jobs," June 2019

For further information, please visit:

pewtrusts.org/nationalparks

Contact: Monique O'Grady, communications manager
Email: mogrady@pewtrusts.org

Contact: Marcia Argust, project director
Email: margust@pewtrusts.org

The Pew Charitable Trusts is driven by the power of knowledge to solve today's most challenging problems. Pew applies a rigorous, analytical approach to improve public policy, inform the public, and invigorate civic life.